

Where could Access to Social Sciences take you?

Wondering what to do after your Access course?

You could study...

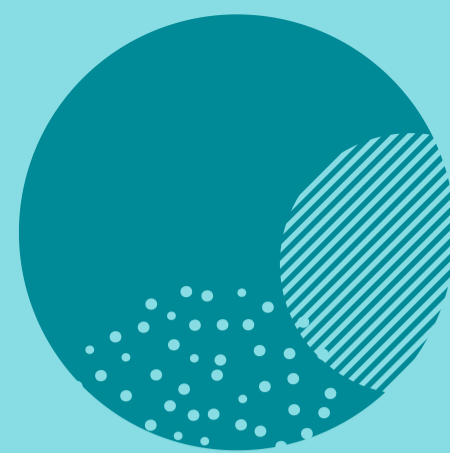

(A few) higher education options:

- Criminology
- Media Studies
- Marketing
- Sociology
- Psychology
- American Studies
- Social Policy
- Politics
- History
- International Development/ Relations
- Psychosocial Studies
- Anthropology
- Urban Planning

Use the UCAS course search tool to find different courses:
www.digital.ucas.com/search

Bear in mind that many employers do not specify which degree course they want you to have studied - they just want you to have a degree, preferably in a related field.

skills you already have

- problem solving
- communication
- analytical skills
- critical thinking
- attention to detail
- self-motivation

Remember, these skills are always worth mentioning in a personal statement, job application, or interview.

Some social sciences courses will have a placement year or the opportunity to study abroad - this is worth considering when applying. Remember, many subjects in the social sciences are offered as 'joint honours' so you can pick two subjects to study.

Apprenticeships

You could pursue these kinds of apprenticeships after your Access course

Marketing executive Level 4 (Higher National Certificate)

£17k per annum

Project Management Apprenticeship Level 4 (Higher National Certificate)

£18-20k per annum

Chartered Manager Level 6 (Degree with honours)

£20k-£21k per annum

Digital and Technology Solutions Professional Apprenticeship Level 6 (Degree with honours)

£22k per annum

www.findapprenticeship.service.gov.uk or search 'find an apprenticeship'

jobs to look for

- marketing professional
- public relations professional
- social researcher
- management consultant
- primary or secondary teacher
- social worker
- charity or community worker

Need some more guidance?

<https://www.ocnlondon.org.uk/Access-to-HE/Access-Learners> or search 'OCN London learner area'

or scan this QR code

