¹⁴ Programme Rationale & Aims

For Foundation Year (year zero), see Foundation Year programme specification.

Programme Rationale:

In our complex and changing globalised world, knowledge and experience are seldom singular, monolithic entities. The BA Liberal Arts is a dynamic interdisciplinary undergraduate programme that offers students a unique opportunity to build a rich, intellectually-diverse degree that truly speaks to the interconnections and complexities of contemporary life.

Constructed around a solid spine of core modules that help students develop the fundamental skills of critical reading, critical writing and an understanding of interdisciplinary inquiry, power and knowledge production, the programme opens out to an exciting and varied provision of subjects, including literature, theatre studies and creative writing, film and media, modern languages, art, history, geography, law and criminology, philosophy, politics and psychosocial studies. Based securely within English and Humanities, within the School of Arts, students will construct 50% of their programme from an expansive list of literary and culturally-orientated modules. Students can then choose 50% of their modules from the palette available across the School of Arts (History of Art, Cultures and Languages and Film, Media and Cultural Studies), the School of School of Social Science, History and Philosophy (Politics, Philosophy, Geography, Psychosocial Studies, History) and the School of Law (Law, Criminology). The culmination of learning and training across the different disciplines is the design and execution of an independent piece of research that is written up as a 7000-word Dissertation.

BA Liberal Arts equips its graduates with the adaptability, breadth of knowledge, depth of critical thinking and highly-developed communication skills that are greatly valued by a diverse range of employers in the contemporary world of work. Should they desire it, they will also be thoroughly equipped for further study at Masters level.

Programme Aims:

- Provide a cogent and stimulating introduction to the Liberal Arts as taught at Birkbeck in the School of Arts and, as appropriate, within the School of Social Sciences, History and Philosophy and within the School of Law.
- Provide progression from the certificate of Higher Education in Literature to the School's MAs such as MA Cultural and Critical Studies and other programmes within the Department, the School and the College more widely. The Certificate in Literature has two modules designated as Arts and Humanities provision and some other modules may also appropriately prepare students for BA Liberal Arts.

- Enable students to develop their skills in academic writing and critical practice.
- Introduce students to diverse forms of representation and equip them with critical methods allowing them to analyse a range of visual, verbal and other texts.
- Enable students to write on the subject matter of the modules at length (and at gradually and progressively extended length) and in a range of academic, and, as appropriate, creative, genres.
- In doing so, offer students detailed academic advice, as close as possible to a 'tailormade' approach in which consultation with an academic tutor enables students to balance the acquisition and development of skills in methods against more contentbased and disciplinary emphasis leading to an end-designated award.
- Through the Liberal Arts pathway students will be offered critical studies. The carefully designed spine of Humanities modules encourages students to reflect on their approach; consider inter-and multi-disciplinary approaches and creative and critical writing.
- The spine of Liberal Arts modules provides intellectual coherence while also preparing students to move between disciplines.
- Provide students with a broad and balanced understanding of the practices of academic reading, research and writing.
- Enable students to develop skills in editing and revising their own writing.
- Enable students to consolidate learning through lecturer/peer feedback.
- Enable students to engage imaginatively in the analysis and interpretation of texts/cultures and methods of knowledge production and study.
- Develop students' independent critical judgement, helping them attain understanding of the histories, conventions, and processes of various genres and disciplines and to present lucid, logical, and well-structured work.

• Produce well-rounded graduates ready to make a contribution to the cultural sector through independent critical and cultural practice, or to progress to postgraduate studies.

(All Modules).

¹⁷ Learning, teaching and assessment methods

For Foundation Year (year zero), see Foundation Year programme specification.

Modules at Levels 4 and 5 are taught by lectures, seminars, and workshops. Modules at Level 6 are usually taught in seminar groups. Assessment includes essays and examinations, as well as a wide range of exercises designed to evaluate different abilities and prepare students to the range of genres, lengths, and writing skills required in the twenty-firstcentury workplace.

18 Programme Description For Foundation Year (year zero), see Foundation Year programme specification. In the first year of study, students will develop the fundamental skills of critical reading, critical writing and an understanding of interdisciplinary inquiry, power and knowledge production through two core modules, 'Storytelling: Narrative Archetypes, Forms and Techniques' and Production of the Human: Decolonising the Canon. Alongside these foundational modules, they will choose two other Level 4 modules from the variety of disciplines taught within the School of Arts and School of Social Science, History and Philosophy. At Level 5, the BA Liberal Arts Core 'Connecting the Arts' will build upon students' interdisciplinary skill-set by giving them a critical appreciation of the different arts and cultural production. In addition to taking another English & Humanities L5 module such as Narratives of the Body or Literature, Empire and Race, students will continue to pursue their learning in other disciplines within the School of Arts (including further English & Humanities options if they wish), School of Social Science, History and Philosophy and also within the School of Law. On reaching L6, students will choose one module from the varied period and themed module offered in English & Humanities, such as America Rewired: US Literature and Culture Since the 1960s or Literature and Visual Culture. They will continue their interdisciplinary explorations by taking two further modules offered across the School of Arts (again, including further English & Humanities options if they wish), School of Social Science, History and Philosophy and School of Law. As the intellectual capstone of their degree programme, in which they draw together their interdisciplinary training, they will produce a Final Year Dissertation on a research topic of their own devising. Level 4 (120 Credits): 1 Core Module: Production of the Human: Decolonising the Canon (30 Credits) 1 Compulsory Module: • Storytelling: Narrative Archetypes, Forms and Techniques (30 Credits) + 60 Credits from BA English/BA Liberal Arts Options, OR other LEVEL 4 provision within the School of Arts, OR other LEVEL 4 provision within School of Social Sciences, History and Philosophy, OR Higher Education Introductory Studies (HEIS) Certificate, or other Cert HE in the School of Arts

Level 5 (120 Credits):

1 Core Module:

• 'Connecting the Arts' (30 Credits)

+ 1 option from BA English/BA Liberal Arts Options (30 credits)

+ 2 options from other LEVEL 5 provision within the School of Arts (including BA English/BA Liberal Arts Options if desired) OR School of Social Sciences, History and Philosophy OR School of Law (for a total of 60 Credits)

Level 6 (120 credits):

1 Core module:

• Liberal Arts Final Year Dissertation (30 Credits)

+ 1 option from BA English/BA Liberal Arts Options (30 credits)

+ 2 options from other LEVEL 6 provision within the School of Arts (including BA English/BA Liberal Arts Options if desired) OR School of Social Sciences, History and Philosophy OR School of Law (for a total of 60 Credits)

In summary:

The programme consists of 12 modules (30 credits each), of which:

3 BA Liberal Arts Core/compulsory taught modules (2x L4; 1x L5);

2 more units must be chosen from the modules offered by Dept of English Theatre and Creative Writing, L5-L6;

Core L6 Final Year Dissertation, administered by Dept of English, Theatre and Creative Writing supervised by a subject specialist in the School of Arts.

6 modules (L4-L6) can be chosen from options within Schools of Arts, SSHP and Law
