14	Programme Rationale & Aims
	The MSc in Environment and Sustainability aims to provide an advanced-level grounding in sustainable responses to a broad range of environmental issues. It explores the relationship between policy, practice and the ecological environment and the development of effective strategies for addressing the threats and opportunities posed by environmental issues. Compulsory modules will be undertaken in the first year in Environment and Policy; Environmental Science for Environmental Management; and Sustainable Business Practice. By engaging with academic, professional and popular literature students will gain an informed understanding of the key issues in the two important areas of science and policy. They will be able to assess the effectiveness of different policy approaches and critically evaluate different environmental issues. In the second year of the programme, students will further develop their research skills in the module GEDS Research Methods and choose options to take their own interests further (e.g Environmental Reporting and Management Systems, Energy and Climate Change, Critical Geographies of Nature, Readings in the Environment or other Birkbeck modules) and research for a dissertation to conduct an in-depth study of real environmental challenges.
