14	Programme Rationale &amp; Aims	The impact of international economic law and institutions upon justice and development is an issue which justifiably commands attention from all quarters—local politicians and international celebrities, savvy pharmaceutical companies and bewildered farmers, moral philosophers and foreign investors. The aim of this programme is to engage students in a critical examination of the law, institutions and practice constituting global and local economies.
15	Entry Criteria	The entry requirement is a second class honours degree in law or a related discipline, or an equivalent international qualification.
16	Learning Outcomes	On successful completion of this programme a student will be expected to be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Undertake a critical examination of the law, institutions and practice which constitute global and local economies.</li> <li>2. Undertake a critical examination of the law, institutions and practice which constitute global and local economies, through specific, in-depth case studies.</li> <li>3. Demonstrate an appreciation for the objectives, operation and importance of specific international economic institutions.</li> <li>4. Demonstrate an appreciation of practical outcomes from theory.</li> </ol>

	5. Engage in Interdisciplinary analysis. 6. Demonstrate improved written and oral communication skills. 7. Engage in introspection and reflection.

17	Learning, teaching and assessment methods Teaching and learning will be conducted through seminars and, in the case of students electing to take the dissertation module, through supervised research. Final assessment for each compulsory and optional module is based on a 4000 word essay due at the start of term following the module. Students choosing the Research Project option will be required to submit an 8000 to 10,000 word dissertation due in September. Coursework has been selected as a method of assessment on the grounds that it allows students to be assessed on their understanding of material covered in the course as well as on their ability to research and think independently. In all cases the pass mark is 50%. However, in the case of optional subjects, up to 30 credits can be "compensated credit" in the range of 40-49%, in line with the CAS regulations. Issues relating to late submission and plagiarism will be dealt with as required by the CAS policies. Assessments will be marked by two internal and one external examiner. The role of the external examiner is to ensure internal consistency and academic standards comparable to those applying to programmes at the same level in other institutions.
